Vacancy filled on the Crawford County Board

The Crawford County Board of Commissioners filled a vacancy on the board last Thursday.

After holding a special meeting, the Crawford County Board unanimously voted to appoint Cheryl Ruley to fill a vacancy in the Fifth Commissioner's District.

Commissioner Kathy Rogers made the motion to appoint Ruley to the board, which was seconded by Commissioner Shelly Pinkelman.

The Grayling City Council has requested the Crawford County Board of Commissioners to add fees for the home improvement projects into its building fee schedule.

GHS finishes 2011-2012 sports season

Grayling High School concluded its 2011-2012 sports season with spring sports (baseball, softball, soccer, golf, tennis), a group that combined for four playoff wins and eight state qualifiers.

The GHS varsity softball team won 15 games – the most in the program's history – this year. The squad also had the most Lake Michigan Conference wins in the program's history; the Vikings were 9-5 in league play this season, finishing in a tie for second place in the conference. Page 11

The Back to the Bricks Heart of Michigan Promotional Tour and Downtown Development Authority Block Party drew hundreds of people into downtown Grayling on Saturday. The event featured a performance by Penny and the Gents, a Grayling-based band, a DJ and an entertainment tent. POST 9/11 ERA STANDARDS MEAN CHANGES NEAR CAMP GRAYLING

by Dan Sanderson
Staff Writer

The entrance to Camp Grayling as well as the access to Margrethe Boulevard will receive a major overhaul later this year to enhance safety of the troops training at the military installation.

The Michigan Department of Military and Veterans Affairs is planning a $750,000 project, which will change how traffic enters Camp Grayling. The project will also change how homeowners access their homes in the Margrethe Boulevard area.

The reason for the project is the existing entrance to Camp Grayling does not meet U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Access Control Point standards. In order to bring the entrance into compliance, roadway modifications will take place to lengthen the entrance to Camp Grayling.

"Our main goal is to slow traffic and contain threats quite literally," said Jon Jorgenson, an architect in the Michigan Department of Military and Veterans Affairs construction and facilities management division.

Under the proposed plan, the beginning to the entrance of Camp Grayling will be extended out about 600 feet from where the current entrance is now located.

Next, a roundabout, which allows vehicles to travel in circular motion before proceeding to the guardhouse or out of Camp Grayling would be built. Motorists who travel into Camp Grayling by accident would have the ability to use the roundabout to get back onto M-93 before encountering security guards.

The roadway on Margrethe Boulevard would be removed between M-93 and Borchers Way to remove access to Camp Grayling where the guardhouse is located.

Cooling off on a hot day in the city

The City of Grayling's Department of Public Works employees allowed a fire hydrant located off of Peninsular Avenue and Ingham Street to flow last week while the community's water tower was being maintained. Above, although the water was very cold, that didn't stop Taylor Albright, Alexandra Bonamie and Abby Thomas from playing in it and riding their bikes through the puddle on the sidewalk.

IMPORTANT ECONOMIC INFORMATION

During the past few years, low interest rates, war and uncertain stock market performance combined to push prices of gold and silver to their highest levels in 25 years. We have studied the investment and retail markets for decades, and in the past during times of economic uncertainty (which is deepening now), there have been dramatic price declines in many areas of the jewelry, gold and retail markets. Which is why this may be the best time in decades for you to sell for some of the highest prices ever.

Vacancy filled on the Crawford County Board

by Dan Sanderson
Staff Writer

The Crawford County Board of Commissioners filled a vacancy on the board last Thursday.

After holding a special meeting, the Crawford County Board unanimously voted to appoint Cheryl Ruley to fill a vacancy in the Fifth Commissioner's District.

Commissioner Kathy Rogers made the motion to appoint Ruley to the board, which was seconded by Commissioner Shelly Pinkelman.

Tom Cogswell, a former Otsego County Commissioner who now lives in Crawford County, was the other applicant for the position.

Dave Stephenson, who has served on the county board since 2003, was forced to resign from the board on Tuesday, May 15. Stephenson moved to a new home in Crawford County's Sixth District, which covers Lovells Township and the eastern portion of Grayling Charter Township.

Stephenson is running unopposed in the Sixth District.

Stephenson was elected to serve on the board in Crawford County's Fifth District.

Ruley is the executive director of the Crawford County United Way and a member of the volunteer board of directors for 211 for Northeast Michigan. She has also served on the Crawford County Library Board of Trustees for eight years.

Ruley said she wanted to take on another leadership role to help the county before taxpayers had to pay for the cost of a special election to fill the vacancy.

"I love my county and I care for it," Ruley said. "I would love to be able to serve my community and represent the people in my district."

Ruley did not file to run in Crawford County's Second Commissioner's District, a reconfigured district starting in 2013. She said she was not aware that the district, which includes her home, was so drastically redrawn to include a portion of Grayling Charter Township and Beaver Creek Township.

New commissioner districts were redrawn by a reapportionment committee following 2010 Census data. The new districts were adopted by the county board in June 2011.

Sharon Priebe is running the in Second Commissioner's district unopposed. Ruley said she would not want to run as an independent or write-in candidate since she believes a majority of voters would be voting with a straight-party ticket.

Ruley said she could still serve on the library board after being appointed to the county board.

Crawford County Administrator Paul Compo said any conflict with the board would likely come from serving on the library board.

"I don't see anything that would prevent it, but we would have to do some research," Compo said.

Ruley said she wanted to stay on the library board since a funding renewal is on the Aug. 7 primary election ballot. She was instrumental in getting the funding proposal passed to pay for library operations in 2004.

Ruley said she would abstain from any votes dealing with the library.

"I would step back from any conflict, any time," she said.

Cogswell is running against Rick Anderson, chairman of the Crawford County Board of Commissioners, in the Aug. 7 primary election.

City requests county adopt building code fees

by Dan Sanderson
Staff Writer

The door is not closed on requiring building permit fees for reroofing, residing and installing windows in at least the City of Grayling.

The Grayling City Council has requested the Crawford County Board of Commissioners to add fees for the home improvement projects into its building fee schedule.

The Crawford County Building and Zoning Department handles building code inspections for the City of Grayling.

In May 2009, the county board rejected a proposal to adopt the fees for reroofing, residing and installing windows because they believed it would place a hardship on homeowners and contractors.

In 2009, Joe Duran, director for the Crawford County Building and Zoning Department, recommended the Crawford County Board approve the new fees to protect the unknown public regarding the new building requirements.

Duran said the inspections covered by the fee would ensure the work was being done to manufacturer's specifications. The inspections would also protect the health, safety and welfare of county residents by cutting down mold and mildew contamination in homes and helping eliminate complaints that go to the Department of Consumer and Industry Affairs for shoddy work.

The fee request was prompted by a state law, which went into effect on June 1, 2009, which amended the Michigan Residential Code and incorporates International Residential Code specifications for family dwellings into state building requirements.

In addition, the law required a licensed residential contractor to do the reroofing, residing and window installation.

Counties, which do their own building code enforcement, can avoid adopting the inspection fees.

Now, the Grayling City Council is requesting the fees for work being done in the city. No other township in the county is in support of adding the fees.

"That was the only way we were going to do this is if a township or municipality requests it," said Rick Anderson, chairman of the Crawford County Board of Commissioners.

Commissioner Kathy Rogers, who represents the county district which includes the City of Grayling, was not in favor of adopting the fees. When the fees were first discussed, a $90 fee was proposed for the inspections.

"I don't think the citizens of Grayling should be supporting the building department," Rogers said.

Rogers said she would get more input from Grayling officials to bring back to the board. Crawford County Administrator Paul Compo was directed to again gauge the support of the townships in adopting the fees.

Anderson said Crawford County is one of few counties that don't require permits for roofing, siding and installing windows.

By not having the extra level of protection of inspections in place means people, who are not licensed contractors, are doing the home improvement jobs that do not meet standards.

Avoiding putting the fees in place, like the state and other counties, creates an unnecessary hazard for homeowners, Anderson said.

"That's not how the rules work in the real world and that's why there is so much litigation," Anderson said.

Almanack

by Richard Milliman

New international bridge may become fact

GOV. RICK SNYDER made a new public bridge between Detroit and Canada a top priority when he outlined his agenda for Michigan's future in his original inaugural address more than two years ago.

Repeatedly since then, he has promised that no Michigan tax dollars would be spent on the project.

Despite steady opposition, especially in the Michigan state legislature, a few days ago, Gov. Snyder and Canadian Prime Minister Stephen Harper signed the New International Trade Crossing Agreement and agreed to build a new bridge, just as Gov. Snyder promised.

It also appears that Canada will furnish most of the money, and Michigan tax dollars will not be spent.

UP TO THIS point, The Almanack has not discussed the bridge, mainly because basically it involves Detroit, and I don't really understand what's going on.

Now even though the two governments have put it in writing, that hasn't changed.

The political atmosphere has been tainted with floods of information, and misinformation, to the point that it's hard to know what to believe. It's tough to discern lies from facts, and vice versa.

The legislature has adopted restrictions on use of some state funds for the bridge. The propriety of the governor acting unilaterally to pledge the state in building the bridge is a question begging for legal solution.

Commented Gov. Snyder at a recent press conference: "I'm confident that we'll be sued and sued. But we'll prevail, prevail, prevail."

A petition drive to pass the buck to voters in the November election may well succeed, and action would stop awaiting the voters' wishes.

It's still a complicated situation. Most of the blame – or credit – for confusion is due to millionaire Detroiters. Matt Moroun, who owns the present Ambassador Bridge and wants to build a second bridge beside it. Mr. Moroun has spent $1.6 million on ads and other methods to sway public and legislative opinion against the public bridge, according to the Michigan Campaign Finance Network.

NOW THAT Michigan and Canada have signed some papers, details are only a bit clearer.

Bridge construction will cost just under $1 billion, or $2 billion, depending on which report you read on which day. It should be completed within 10 years, or maybe four.

Canada will put up all the front money, and Michigan will have no financial investment, according to most stories. Yet, US Rep. John Dingell calls the $550 million Canada will pay on behalf of Michigan's share "a loan" to be repaid from bridge tolls.

So is this a loan, as Mr. Dingell says, or a contribution underway? What tolls, and for how long? So is that Michigan money, or not? Where do these tolls go once the $550 million is repaid to Canada?

A significant point is that this $550 million from Canada will be used to leverage federal matching funds for roads and infrastructure needs in Michigan.

Apparently Canada is ready to pay the entire cost of construction. Or is it?

The bridge will be owned and operated by an international board, I think.

Bonds will be issued, for construction costs, with repayment from tolls, I guess.

Other parts of the overall bridge package include hooking up with I-75 in Detroit, US customs plaza in Detroit, Canadian customs plaza in Windsor, and roads hooking up with Canadian expressways in Windsor.

What happens if the courts decide Gov. Snyder exceeded his authority by acting unilaterally without legislative agreement? What happens if November voters nix the bridge? Is Canada stuck for the whole project?

Still confused? I am.

WHAT ABOUT jobs? Will the new bridge produce all the economic stimulation and new jobs its backers claim?

"Infrastructure projects of this magnitude are proven job creators," Rep. Dingell said in a recent column in The Detroit Free Press. "For every $1 billion in infrastructure investment, 47,000 jobs are created."

A study by the Center for Automotive Research in Ann Arbor listed 6,000 construction jobs for each of the first two years and 5,100 jobs for the last two years, nearly 1,400 permanent jobs to operate the new bridge, increase of $2.2 billion in Michigan's gross domestic product, rise in personal income in Michigan of $4 billion, increase in state and local tax revenue of $400 million.

The rosy picture goes on and on – none of it provable, of course.

I'm still confused, and I probably won't write another word about the International Bridge, at least until I drive across it into Canada, and back again.

Washington Notes

By Carl Levin, U.S. Senator (D-Michigan)

Defense bill protects important priorities for nation and Michigan

As chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, my most important responsibility each year is passage of the National Defense Authorization Act, which authorizes programs and sets policies for our military. So I'm pleased that in May, the committee once again sent a strong bipartisan message of support for our troops and their families with unanimous approval of this authorization for 2013.

Annual passage of this bill is among the most important jobs not just for the committee, but also for Congress. Literally, our national security relies on it, and so do our troops and their families. This year's bill includes a pay raise for military members, and it protects them and military retirees from proposals that would increase their out-of-pocket health care costs.

The bill supports our efforts to build Afghanistan's capability to provide security for its people and to support our own operations as we draw down the U.S. combat presence there. It supports efforts to combat al Qaeda and other violent extremists in places such as Yemen and East Africa. It continues efforts to stop the spread of nuclear weapons and materials. It strengthens special operations forces, intelligence and missile defense, and cyber-security capabilities to help fight terrorism and other nontraditional threats.

Importantly, the bill also supports efforts to live within our means and reduce the deficit. The bill remains within the total spending level proposed by the president. It protects taxpayers in a number of ways: by halting expensive proposals to reconfigure our forces in the Pacific region until more cost-effective plans are developed; by eliminating unnecessary construction projects, by omitting funding for a troubled Army missile defense program, and strengthening oversight of the Defense Department.

These and many other provisions of the bill are of national significance, and as always, providing for the national defense was our highest priority. But the bill also includes a number of provisions that are of special significance to Michigan.

First, the committee, on a bipartisan basis, rejected proposals to retire Air National Guard aircraft and eliminate Guard personnel across the country. These proposals would have hit Air Guard units at Selfridge Air National Guard Base, Battle Creek Air National Guard Base, and Alpena Combat Readiness Training Center especially hard.

The Air National Guard performs an extremely important function, and its capabilities should not be casually or precipitously changed. The Air Force proposed budget cuts that disproportionately affected the Air National Guard. The proposal was ill-conceived and unjustified. We prohibited the Air Force from retiring Air Guard or Air Force Reserve aircraft, rejected the proposed personnel cuts, and provided the necessary funding to account for those changes. We also established a procedure to prevent such poorly thought-out proposals in the future, through appointment of a commission that will make nonbinding recommendations to Congress on the proper structure of the Air Force.

Also, this year's bill continues to rely on Michigan's manufacturing, engineering and technological know-how to protect our country.

The bill authorizes procurement of systems and equipment that Michigan workers and companies help build, including several ground vehicles and the Littoral Combat Ship. It includes $173.5 million for vehicle research and development efforts at the Army's premier vehicle R&D facility, the Tank and Automotive Research, Development and Engineering Center in Warren.

It continues funding for the Defense Department's STARBASE program, which originated in Michigan in 1989 as a way for the military to encourage science, technology, engineering and math education. And it continues programs to support the defense industrial base and boost research and development at universities and in the private sector, programs that for years have had a big impact in Michigan.

Now that the Armed Services Committee has completed its work, I'm hopeful that we can soon bring the bill before the full Senate for consideration, work with our colleagues in the House to work out differences between our bill and the House's own bill, and send a final bill to the president for his signature. This legislation has been a bipartisan priority for more than five decades, and I am confident we'll uphold that tradition this year.

Carl Levin is the senior U.S. senator from Michigan and chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Letters to the Editor

Let's do what is right for the taxpayers of Beaver Creek Township

To the editor:

It is an election year, and there has been rumor going around Beaver Creek Township that if new board members are elected then they will close the Beaver Creek Fire Department.

Too many businesses support the fire department, and they will not let it close.

It is bad when someone has to get so desperate that they have to start a rumor like that when so many people depend on the fire department being there, and it is not fair for new people running for election.

So if you have not been to a township meeting, you should go to one or two to see what is going on and to see where all of our tax money is going. You will be surprised.

Meetings are the second Tuesday of every month at the Beaver Creek Township Hall. So come to a meeting before you make a decision on who to vote for before the August primary.

Let's do what is right for the taxpayers of the township.

Dairy Days, country music to fill Wellington weekend

Wellington Farm 60-acre living history park has been presenting Dairy Days for over 10 years. This year the event will be held on the weekend of June 23 and 24.

Dairy Days is an educational weekend for the younger generation. During the day, interpreters at Wellington will demonstrate the many uses made of milk during the Great Depression. Separating cream from milk is almost as interesting as churning the cream into butter. Cottage cheese, cheddar cheese, ice cream, puddings, custards and baked casseroles all have milk as their primary ingredient and throughout the day all of these will be demonstrated in the Summer Kitchen.

On Saturday evening, June 23, Wellington Farm, USA will present its first Classic Country Music Show of the season. This first show will feature music that was written and made popular during the 1940's and before. During this period of time Country Music was known as Cowboy Music or Hillbilly Music.

The Wellington Country Music Show Band is an 11 member group of talented individuals who come together from all across Northern Michigan. Each of the six shows to be presented this season is highly structured and rehearsed. Hundreds of man-hours of preparation go into the making of every Wellington Country Music Show to assure that it is of the highest quality of country music entertainment.

The Wellington Classic Country Music Show is the only regularly scheduled country music show in Northern Michigan.

Gates at Wellington Farm will open for the Country Music Show at 6:30 p.m. and the show begins at 7:30 p.m.. Price of admission is $12.50 per person, however those attending Dairy Days on June 23 can purchase both their park admission ticket and their Country Music Show ticket for only $12.50. In addition, everyone who attends the June 23 Country Music Show will have an opportunity to win two free tickets to the July 21 show.

Wellington Farm family outing with 60 acres of farm and about a dozen exhibit buildings to explore. Visitors ride into the complex on the farm's shuttle and are then guided through the major buildings by a trained docent. The Bible Speaks

Paul's Ministry of Grace

"Nevertheless, brethren, I have written the more boldly unto you in some sort, as putting you in mind, because of the grace that is given to me of God." (Rom 15:15). Everything Paul had achieved in his ministry he attributed to God's gift of grace. All Christians can claim salvation by the same gift of God's grace alone as stated in Ephesians 2:8,9: "8For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: 9Not of works, lest any man should boast."

First, God's grace is courageous or bold because it is solely a gift of God and because it provides for every Christian God's unmerited or undeserved favor. Paul had just finished detailed instruction in Romans chapters 14 and 15 teaching the strong and weak Christians at Rome how to live together in complete harmony with each other. Either side could have accused Paul of bias or prejudice toward their own doctrinal position and practice. As Paul said in Romans 12:3: "3For I say, through the grace given unto me, to every man that is among you, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think; but to think soberly, according as God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith." As Paul reminded us in 1 Corinthians 4:7 everything we have come from God: "7For who maketh thee to differ from another? and what hast thou that thou didst not receive? now if thou didst receive it, why dost thou glory, as if thou hadst not received it?" As 1 John 2:16 reminds us we are all tempted to fall through the lust and pride of this world system instead of trusting Christ: "16For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world."

Second, God's grace is constant or continuing - "...as putting you in mind..." God's truth must be repeated to keep us in remembrance lest we forget. Peter in his final testimony before his pending death bore witness to this truth in 2 Peter 1:12-15: "12Wherefore I will not be negligent to put you always in remembrance of these things, though ye know them, and be established in the present truth. 13Yea, I think it meet, as long as I am in this tabernacle, to stir you up by putting you in remembrance; 14Knowing that shortly I must put off this my tabernacle, even as our Lord Jesus Christ hath showed me. 15Moreover I will endeavour that ye may be able after my decease to have these things always in remembrance."

Third, God's grace is causative or contributory - "...because of the grace that is given to me of God..." God's grace was made manifest to us through Jesus Christ who was "...full of grace and truth..." (John 14). "16And of his fullness have all we received, and grace for grace." (John 1:16). God always saves by grace and rules by law. Paul had reminded the Romans in Romans 1:5 he was being obedient to God's grace: "5By whom we have received grace and apostleship, for obedience to the faith among all nations, for his name." In Acts 20:24 Paul taught us he would rather die than fail to finish his ministry of grace: "24But none of these things move me, neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that I might finish my course with joy, and the ministry, which I have received of the Lord Jesus, to testify the gospel of the grace of God." All true ministry brings honor to God's goodness, grace, and mercy. Pastor "B"

Post 9/11 era standards mean changes near Camp Grayling

"That's the whole point of access control is controlling traffic," Jorgenson said.

Finally, a new connector road leading to Margrethe Boulevard, will be built. The road, which will be about one-eighth of a mile, will intersect with Military Road.

William McQueen, who lives off of Borchers Way, said he has concerns with the slope of the new roadway, citing accidents that have taken place on Military Road.

"Trucks have fallen off the roadway because they can't come to a stop right there," McQueen said.

Don Babcock, managing director for the Crawford County Road Commission, said the road would slope at a rate of less than six percent.

Don Williams said he is getting the perception that Camp Grayling was moving toward being more of a federal facility for armed forces.

"I can accept changes, but I like to be in on it from the beginning," Williams said.

Jim Robson, facilities engineer for Camp Grayling, said the changes are being made to modernize security in the post 9/11 era.

"Since 9/11, everything has changed as far as national defense," Robson said. "Ultimately, it is on military land. 'It's not a federal issue at all.'"

After 9/11, Robson

requested that concrete barricades be placed at the entrance of Camp Grayling. A terrorist could conceivably still crash through the barricades, take out the guards and do whatever they wanted to do at Camp Grayling.

"The way the new site will be set up, that will eliminate that risk," Robson said.

Three mounted street lights will be placed along the roadway to illuminate the entrance to Camp Grayling. One street light was already in the planning stages to be installed at the intersection of M-93 and Military Road, regardless of the proposed project, to deal with concerns over motorists missing the turn during nighttime hours, Robson said.

Landscaping, lighting and signage would be placed at the entrance of Camp Grayling to give the public and visitors a good first impression, Robson said.

The project requires approval from the Crawford County Road Commission and the Michigan Department of Transportation before construction permits are issued.

Margrethe Boulevard residents said they wanted to stay informed while plans are being finalized.

"There comes a point where there is no turning back," Bill Diedrich said.

Construction is slated to start in August with an anticipated completion date in the fall.

SAFETY PATROL COMPLETES ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Mailmen are not the only people on the streets in the rain, snow and sleet.

Fifty-two fifth graders served as safety patrollers during the 2011-12 school year in all types of weather.

The AAA safety patrol program is made up of students who are recommended by their fourth grade teachers. They must be responsible, trustworthy and good citizens of the Grayling Elementary-AuSable Primary School.

Patrollers arrive at school 45 minutes early each day to report to their posts and stay 15 minutes after school.

While on duty they help elementary students cross main intersections, monitor the school lobby and hallways and help keep the bus loading area safe.

"In their bright yellow belts, the safety patrol also serve as ambassadors for our school, helping students who need special assistance, giving directions to visitors and answering questions," said Karen Leslie, a Grayling Elementary fifth grade teacher who oversees the safety patrol program.

The North Central Area Credit Union and the Crawford County Sheriff's Office support the safety patrollers.

The credit union provides funds for purchasing safety patrol belts, ponchos and other supplies.

Sheriff's Office employees raised money to pay for an end of the year safety patrol celebration at the Avalanche Bay Water Park.

scheduled to submit a budget for the Crawford County Board to review on June 26.

"I don't know what the county budget has in store," Wakefield said.

A new deputy will likely be hired after the county's fiscal year budget begins on Oct. 1.

"I may try to get by until the new budget and save a little bit," Wakefield said.

Senior Project Fresh Program benefits local seniors and supports farm markets

Last summer, the Crawford County Commission on Aging and Senior Center (COA) received $1,200 from the Great Lakes Energy People Fund and $400 from the Crawford County United Way to fund the Senior Project Fresh Program.

Members of Great Lakes Energy support the People Fund by voluntarily rounding up their bills to the next highest dollar. The rounded up amount is distributed to non-profit organizations and charitable activities that benefit people in communities served by the cooperative. More information is available on this program at Great Lakes Energy, 1-888-485-2537, or at glakes.com.

In partnership with MSU Extension, who provides nutrition education, the COA distributed $20 coupon booklets to 188 seniors in Crawford County. The program not only benefits seniors with eating healthy, but it also supports the local farm market businesses.

In Crawford County the Senior Project Fresh Program and MSU coupon books are accepted at Jim's Farm Market, 6289 M-72 West; Grayling Greenhouse, Youth learn the cycles of weather and water

Jim Keyser and Mike Boguth, forecasters from the National Weather Service Office located just south of Gaylord, gave a presentation called Weather and Water at the Devereaux Memorial Crawford County Library last week. They covered a whole gamete of weather topics, including clouds, rain, tornados and floods. The program was part of the library system's summer reading program called "Dream Big-Read!" Right, William Fairbotham, of Grayling, helps Boguth and Keyser simulate the formation of a cloud by pumping air into a plastic bottle. Above, a group of youngsters learn how wetlands, shown here in the form of sponges, prevent flooding.

2011 Water Quality Report for the City of Grayling

This report covers the drinking water quality for the City of Grayling for the calendar year 2011. This information is a snapshot of the quality of the water that we provided to you in 2011. Included are details about where your water comes from, what it contains, and how it compares to Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and state standards.

Your water comes from 2 groundwater wells located on the North East side of the City. In 2003 the State performed an assessment of our source water and determined Well 1 to have a low susceptibility to contamination and Well 2 to have a moderately low susceptibility. You may obtain a copy of this assessment report from City Hall, 1020 City Boulevard, Grayling, MI 49738

Contaminants and their presence in water: Drinking Water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the EPA's Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791)

Vulnerability of sub-populations: Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immunocompromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplant, is, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbial contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791)

Sources of drinking water: The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. Our water comes from wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally-occurring minerals and, in some cases, radioactive material, and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity.

Contaminants that may be present in source water include:

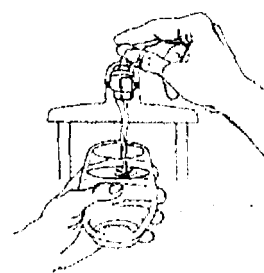

Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, which can be naturally-occurring or result from urban stormwater runoff, industrial or domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining or farming.

Pesticides and herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture and residential uses.

Radioactive contaminants, which can be naturally occurring or be the result of oil and gas production and mining activities.

Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, and can also come from gas stations, urban stormwater runoff, and septic systems.

In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, EPA prescribes regulations that limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. Food and Drug Administration regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water which provide the same protection for public health.

Water Quality Data

The table below lists all the drinking water contaminants that we detected during the 2011 calendar year. The presence of these contaminants in the water does not necessarily indicate that the water poses a health risk. Unless otherwise noted, the data presented in this table is from testing done January 1 - December 31, 2011. The State allows us to monitor for certain contaminants less than once per year because the concentrations of these contaminants are not expected to vary significantly from year to year. All of the data is representative of the water quality, but some are more than one year old.

Terms and abbreviations used below:

- Maximum Contaminant Level Goal (MCLG): The level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.
- Maximum Contaminant Level (MCL): The highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.
- ADE: Average Daily Exposure (ADE); not detectable at testing limit (ppb); parts per billion or micrograms per liter (ppm); parts per million or milligrams per liter (mg/L); picocuries per liter (a measure of radioactivity) (RAD); running annual average.
- Action Level (AL): The concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements that a water system must follow.

Samples Collected at the Wellhouse:

Regulated Chemical Contaminants	MCL	MCLG	Our Water	Sample Date	Violation Yes / No	Typical Source of Contaminants

¹Unregulated contaminants are those for which EPA has not established drinking water standards. Monitoring helps EPA to determine where certain contaminants occur and whether it needs to regulate those contaminants.

Copper (ppm) ²	1.3	0.10	08/12/2009	0	Corrosion of household plumbing systems; Erosion of natural deposits; Leaching from wood preservatives

Information about lead: If present, elevated levels of lead can cause serious health problems, especially for pregnant women and young children. Lead in drinking water is primarily from materials and components associated with service lines and home plumbing. The City of Grayling is responsible for providing high quality drinking water, but cannot control the variety of materials used in plumbing components. When your water has been sitting for several hours, you can minimize the potential for lead exposure by flushing your tap for 30 seconds to 2 minutes before using water for drinking or cooking. If you are concerned about lead in your water, you may wish to have your water tested. Information on lead in drinking water, testing methods, and steps you can take to minimize exposure is available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline or at <http://www.epa.gov/safewater/lead>.

Monitoring and Reporting Requirements:

The State and EPA require us to test our water on a regular basis to ensure its safety. We met all the monitoring and reporting requirements for 2009.

We, the City of Grayling employees, make every effort to provide quality water to every City of Grayling water tap. We ask that all our customers help us protect our water sources, which are the heart of our community, our way of life, and our children's future. As part of a continuing effort to protect our water sources the City of Grayling began the process of implementing a Wellhead protection program in 2003 with delineation of Well 2. Delineation for Well 1 was submitted in 2009 and a revised Wellhead Protection Area was approved by the State of Michigan. A Wellhead protection program is a planning and management approach to protect groundwater supply systems from contamination by identifying and managing potential sources of contamination that can affect water supply wells.

We invite public participation in decisions that affect drinking water quality. City Council meetings are held the second and last Monday of each month, 7:00PM at Grayling City Hall, 1020 City Boulevard, Grayling, MI 49738. For more information about your water, or the contents of this report, contact Chad Beckert at 989-348-2131 or send email to dpw@cityofgrayling.org. For more information about safe drinking water, visit the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency at www.epa.gov/safewater.

We will update this report annually and will keep you informed of any problems that may occur throughout the year, as they happen. Copies are available at City Hall, 1020 City Boulevard, Grayling, MI 49738, or this report can be viewed on the internet at www.cityofgrayling.org. This report will not be sent to you.

Carol Thompson, of Grayling, set a new Grayling Country Club course record on Saturday, June 17, with a three under 34 for nine holes. Thompson started out with an eagle on the par five first hole. She got birdies on holes 3, 8 and 9. She double-bogeyed the sixth hole.

Joseph Wakeley, of Grayling, has been selected as "Business Associate of the Year" by the Grayling Chapter of the American Business Women's Association (A.B.W.A.) Results of a two year study of the environment on and around firing ranges at Camp Grayling found no adverse environmental impact on water or soil. The report concluded that there had been no detectable adverse impact on the water quality of either the North or the East Branch of the AuSable River or on the water quality of the lakes associated with the range. It also found that groundwater showed no signs of adverse impacts from training activities.

Mrs. Wells will remain here and manage the resort. Miss Patricia Roberts, who is attending nurses training school at Sparrow Hospital in Lansing, is home for a vacation, expecting to be here until July 5.

The Misses Bernice and Ruth Corwin, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Nels Corwin, have gone to Leroy to spend the summer with a cousin.

Miss Laura Simpson is home for the summer from Cadillac where she has been teaching.

Nearly all the cottages at Lake Margrethe are open.

Mrs. S.N. Insley and family left Grayling on Friday to make their home in Detroit. The community regrets very much the loss of this fine family which has been a part of it for 25 years.

HOROSCOPES

Week of June 17, 2012

Laughter lights up your world this week, Capricorn. Everyone it seems is in good spirits and has something funny to share. A memo is not reason for pause.

Peace fills your home, and you must work quickly to find a way to ensure it stays that way, Aquarius. A health concern eases with an alternative treatment.

Boredom sets in at home, and it's up to you to live things up. Pices. Hot days call for cool fun. A letter seals the deal, and you must get cracking.

Passion sizzles with a one-of-a-kind gift, Aries. Tasks get checked off the to-do list quickly with delegation. An auto dilemma is solved with resourcefulness.

Too bad, Taurus. You give it a try, but alas, it doesn't work. Try not to get too worked up about it. A bigger, better opportunity is in store.

Prepare for your brain to be picked, Gemini, when old friends drop by. They're looking for something, which you may or may not be able to provide.

Oh, how you long for the good times, and oh, how you're about to get them, Cancer. Everything you touch will be golden this week!

Caution, Leo. Now is not the time to drop the ball. Be diligent, and you'll come out on top. A promotion of some sort could be in order.

All eyes are on you, Virgo, and you rise to the occasion. An adventure on the water brings the gang together for some fun under the sun.

Of all the offers you receive, none will be as good as the one that comes your way this week, Libra. Don't say no. A habit turns out to be harder to break than thought.

Round and round you go, Scorpio. Where you fall no one knows--except for that little chap that's been following you. Act fast to get back on track.

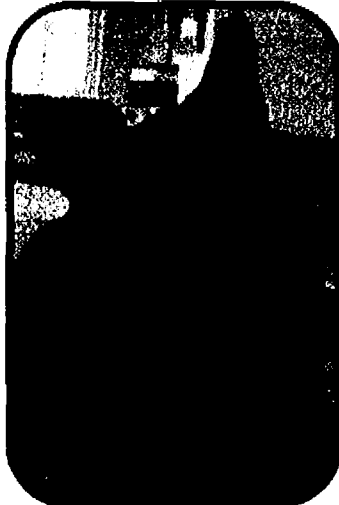

Hold back, Sagittarius. Enthusiasm can be contagious, but it can also be a turnoff. Restrain is key. Motivate but don't push. An organization beckons.
